

Department of Commerce

Commercial Law Advisor (Reconstruction and Stabilization (R&S))

Additional Duty Location Info: 1 vacancy - Washington, DC

MAJOR DUTIES:

The incumbent participates in the formulation and implementation of US programs intended to maintain or foster a rapid transition to democracy and participates in the development of plans to assist a transitional government. The commercial law issues covered by the incumbent are of major concern to the bilateral relationship between the United States and the host country and of the utmost importance to US national security interests in the region, and are carefully tracked by members of Congress, the US business community, and the media. As such, the incumbent is responsible for: (1) serving as an authoritative source of all legal/political/economic and policy and programmatic information for the assigned functional areas; (2) helping to plan US actions taken under the strategy approved at senior levels, looking in particular for new programs through which to pursue US objectives related to the commercial law legislative and regulatory environment, and participating in reviews and updates of that strategy; (3) developing recommendations for USG positions to respond to changing conditions on the ground (4) anticipating and preparing documents and briefings for senior Department officials for important meetings, speeches, etc; and (5) delivering comments and making speeches, as needed, concerning USG policy at conferences, internal meetings, and subject matter panels.

While deployed to fragile states, the Commercial Law Advisor for R&S will be part of a Commerce Department team in the host nation or may be the only Commerce Department representative in that nation depending on deployments at any given time.

Click here for the full Job Announcement on USAJobs and to apply.